RELATED QUESTIONS

Which is the first source of energy for the body?

Carbohydrates are the main energy source of the human diet. The metabolic disposal of dietary carbohydrates is direct oxidation in various tissues, glycogen synthesis (in liver and muscles), and hepatic de novo lipogenesis.

What are energy giving nutrients?

The nutrients that provide energy are commonly referred to as macronutrients (carbohydrates, lipids, and proteins). Carbohydrates and proteins provide a similar amount of energy per gram of food.

Which of the following would provide the most energy?

Fat provides the most energy of all the macronutrients, at a whopping 9 calories per gram. That's why even a small amount of food or condiments that are rich in fat can pack so many calories.
