Is it legal to burn music to a CD?

No, it is not legal to burn and retain a copy of a cd you do not own. You can buy a cd and burn a copy to your computer or ipod for your own use, but not for someone else. Same holds true of any borrowed cd, either from a library or a friend.

RELATED QUESTIONS

What kind of CD do I need to burn music to my car?

CD-RWs are 70% less reflective than normal CDs, and many stereo and car CD player lasers are not powerful enough to read them. To work around this issue, burn audio CDs only to high-quality, brand name CD-R (compact disc, recordable) media.

Why won't my burned CDs play in the car?

There are a handful of reasons that a burned CD might not work in your car CD player, and they're all related to the type of media (e.g. CD-R, CD-RW, DVD-R) you use, the format of the music, the method you use to burn the CD, and the capabilities of your head unit.

What format should I use to burn my audio CDs?

Audio CDs always contain uncompressed PCM stereo audio at 44100 Hz sample rate, 16-bit sample format. So to burn an audio CD, export the file(s) you want to burn as a 44100 Hz 16-bit stereo WAV or AIFF file. To configure Audacity for this: At the bottom left of the Audacity window, set the Project Rate to 44100 Hz.
